

Adapté par Charlotte Perriand en 1984

Table pied corolle

Table with grey enamelled steel structure and cast iron base. Top in natural walnut, length 220 cm (86.6") and in white Carrara marble, length 213,5 cm (84").

This model was designed by the authors in two different versions: the first was made for Le Corbusier's Paris apartment in rue Nungesser-et-Coli, in 1934 and the second one, with a slate top, was designed for the Maison du Jeune Homme in Brussels, in 1935.

Gallery

Dimensions

Authenticity

All the models in the Cassina collection, by merit of their artistic content and particular creative character, are protected by copyright, a legal institution that is universally recognised and safeguarded; legal protection is assured for the whole life-span of the author and for 70 years after his/her death (or the death of the last surviving co-author).

Designer

Le Corbusier, Pierre Jeanneret, Charlotte Perriand

In 1922, Le Corbusier began working in the new rue de Sèvres, Paris, atelier with his cousin Pierre Jeanneret with whom he shared research projects and design criteria in a profound and life-long professional relationship.

In October 1927, the pair decided to draw on the contribution of a young architect who had already begun to establish a reputation on the architectural scene of the time: Charlotte Perriand.

Their collaboration lasted through to 1937 and was extremely fruitful, especially in the field of furniture design. The partnership was highly significant, both in terms of the cultural weight of their achievements and their professional successes.

It was together with Charlotte Perriand that the pair tackled the innovative project for "l'équipement d'intérieur de l'habitation".

The resulting designs were of great intellectual value and considerable commercial success.

Thanks to Cassina's ongoing production, there is continued interest in the conceptual contents of the work and the level of quality attained.

Due to these characteristics, each item in the collection is eagerly awaited.

<http://www.fondationlecorbusier.fr/>